Time to Train? Time to Talk!

The right to request time to train

The things that you learn don't just stay with you – they can actually take you places. They connect you with people, with new skills and with your future. Which is why we don't think you should ever stop learning.

The right to request time to train offers you the opportunity to talk about your training needs with your employer and how learning can support your job, your workplace and your company.

Find out more about your right from your organisation or visit www.direct.gov.uk or www.campaignforlearning.org.uk
